5. A questionnaire designed to ascertain the number of degree-credit courses taught during 1975-1976 by black staff members with faculty rank was sent to 46 black staff members. Of the 28 responses, 20 persons indicated that they taught a total of 106 degree-credit courses for a total of 392 credit hours. Those that did not teach were members of the library staff, social work, and administration.

15. The same questionnaire was also designed to ascertain the number of black staff members on a nine-month appointment who taught summer quarter 1976 and the number who were given the opportunity but did not teach. Of the 28 responses, 14 persons indicated that they had nine-month appointments. Nine of those 14 did teach in summer school, 4 more were given the opportunity but did not teach, and 1 was not given the opportunity to teach because her field (Social Work) did not offer a summer school program.
